Pastor's Note

PRO-LIFE AND CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

The issues surrounding the defense of human life receive particular attention in our parish churches during this month of October. The most important issue in the whole Pro-Life Movement is the defense of the dignity of the lives of unborn children in the face of the widespread practice of abortion. Other issues of “pro-life” are related to the Church’s championing of the cause of the unborn: euthanasia, for example, the deliberate killing of the sick and disabled, or embryonic stem-cell research. More and more, you see opposition to capital on the Pro-Life list, as if were just one more instance of the Church’s opposition to the taking of human life. This is, to say the least, problematic.

Abortion is wrong because the willful taking of innocent human life is always and everywhere gravely evil. It is homicide. And an unborn child in its mother’s womb is certainly innocent. Capital punishment, however, correctly understood, is an exercise of justice by the competent public authority (the state) in order to punish criminals for serious crimes. It is not an act of revenge. It is not “state murder”. The moral legitimacy of capital punishment has always been recognized by the Catholic Church. St. Paul in Romans, Chapter 13, sees in the civil authority the power to punish malefactors “with the sword”. St. Thomas Aquinas in his Summa Theologica treats capital punishment under the question “Is it lawful to kill sinners?” and answers in the affirmative. In more recent times Pope Pius XII vindicated the continued right of public authority to punish serious crimes with the death penalty. So, opposition to abortion and opposition to capital punishment are not to be equated because “killing is killing”. A principled Catholic rejection of capital punishment in the present day is better to be found on practical grounds: the death penalty is too often unjustly applied, particularly by governments which trample on the rights of their people, the potentially deterrent effect of the death penalty is cancelled out when capital punishment is rarely used and inflicted only after long delay, and so forth. But this does not mean that capital punishment in itself is morally wrong.

So, there is no inconsistency on the part of a faithful Catholic who is 100% pro-life on the question of abortion but more favorable to the state’s right to exercise the death penalty. The inconsistency lies with those who are 100% opposed to any criminal being punished with execution, yet have no conscience when it comes to the execution of unborn children through abortion.

(Fr. Higgins)

KNOW YOUR CATHOLIC FAITH

GOSPEL OF SAINT LUKE BIBLE STUDY

Luke 3:21-22

These two verses describing the events conjoined with Jesus' Baptism reveal some of the most fantastic things to us about our relationship with God. It is worth noting that St. Luke does not actually describe Jesus' Baptism itself. Instead, the construction of the Greek original makes it clear that St. Luke wants to focus the reader's attention on what happens to Jesus as He is praying, after the Baptism. As many commentators have noted, the original text clearly leads the reader to focus on three particular actions. It is as Jesus is praying, that (1) the heavens open, (2) the Spirit descends, and (3) the Father declares that Jesus is His beloved Son. For St. Luke, these three things are most important. The Baptism itself, while inextricably united to these theophanies (revelations of God), is ultimately subservient to them. Nevertheless, these three theophanies in the context of Jesus' prayer explain to us exactly who Jesus is, and consequently, what our own baptism and confirmation are really all about.

The emphasis on prayer is a uniquely Lucan theme, and highlights the intimacy Christ has with the Father, an intimacy into which He invites us and integrates us through our baptism. In our baptism we are put into relationship/communion with God (the technical expression for this is that we are given "sanctifying grace"). We are given a "direct line" to God, because our sins have been forgiven, and we have become His adopted children through grace.

For ancient Jews, it is crucial to note that they maintained deep reverence in their personal prayer and synagogue liturgy. This linked them to the Temple in Jerusalem, which was the earthly portal to heaven, and thus, the truest participation in the worship of heaven. For more on this subject, as well as the following points, see Ratzinger's The Spirit of the Liturgy. My liturgy professor explained the Baptism of Jesus in the following way: Jesus was experiencing, in His human nature, what for Jews could take place most fully at the Temple alone. In other words, His prayer became the definitive portal (greater than the Temple) through which He participated in the worship of His Father in heaven. As Ratzinger also explains, Jesus' Body became the new Temple in and through which worship would be rendered by all people to God the Father (cf. John 3:19-22). The opening of the heavens confirms the potency of Jesus' prayer. More importantly, the words of God the Father confirm Jesus' pre-eternal identity as God the Son: "You are my beloved Son" (v. 22). Jesus is no mere man, but God Himself, who alone is capable of bringing man back to the heaven.

For those of us who are baptized, this reality is ours, too. Joined in the depth of our very being to Christ in Baptism, we have access to heaven through the Temple of Jesus' risen and glorified Body. We can converse with God with a unimaginable degree of intimacy. When we pray a simple "Our Father," we are truly in the divine throne room. Heaven opens, and we are in the presence of the One who calls us His beloved sons and daughters! It's easy to mumble off this prayer without realizing the full import of what we're doing, because we pray it so often (praying it often is a good thing, of course). But we should try to become increasingly conscious of the power that accompanies the words "Our Father," the same power that was manifested after Jesus' Baptism.

The descent of the Spirit confirms Jesus' identity as the Messiah, the "Anointed One," who was prophesied to bring salvation, healing, and redemption to all people (not just the Jews). Jesus is quite conscious of His role in this regard, for He reads one of the most moving passages from Isaiah on this very theme later on in the synagogue at Nazareth. Having read the passage, He explains to the people that He has come to fulfill the prophecy in His own Person (cf. Luke 4:16-21). Like Christ, we who have been confirmed have been given an "anointing" (cf. 1 John 2:20), which enables us to know and love God more fully, and participate more closely in His plan to draw all people to himself (cf. Catechism of the Catholic Church no. 1303). Truly, we become "little Christs," or little anointed ones, by being Jesus' ambassadors: bringing the healing and transforming love of God to others by our words and actions.

LATIN MASS TEXTS: Traditional Propers for the 22nd Sunday after Pentecost

INTROIT: Psalm 129: 3-4 If Thou shalt observe iniquities, O Lord, Lord, who shall endure it? for with Thee is propitiation, O God of Israel. Psalm 129: 1-2 From the depths I have cried to Thee, O Lord: Lord, hear my voice. V. Glory be to the Father.

COLLECT O God, our refuge and strength, who art the author of all godliness; hear, we pray Thee, the devout prayers of Thy Church, and grant that what we ask confidently we may obtain effectually. Through Our Lord.

EPISTLE: Philippians 1: 6-11 Brethren, we are confident in the Lord Jesus, that He who hath begun a good work in you, will perfect it unto the day of Christ Jesus. As it is meet for me to think this for you all, for that I have you in my heart; and that, in my bands and in the defence and confirmation of the Gospel, you are all partakers of my joy. For God is my witness, how I long after you all in the depths of Jesus Christ. And this I pray, that your charity may more and more abound in knowledge and in all understanding; that you may approve the better things; that you may be sincere and without offense unto the day of Christ; filled with the fruit of justice, through Jesus Christ, unto the glory and praise of God.

GRADUAL: Psalm 132: 1-2 Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. V. It is like the precious ointment on the head, that ran down upon the beard, the beard of Aaron.

ALLELUIA: Psalm 113: 11 Alleluia, alleluia. V. They that fear the Lord, let them hope in Him; He is their helper and protector. Alleluia.

GOSPEL: Matthew 22: 15-21 At that time, the Pharisees went and consulted among themselves, how to ensnare Jesus in His speech. And they sent to Him their disciples, with the Herodians, saying: Master, we know that Thou art a true speaker, and teachest the way of God in truth, neither carest Thou for any man, for Thou dost not regard the person of men. Tell us therefore, what dost Thou think? Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar, or not? But Jesus knowing their wickedness, said: Why do you tempt Me, ye hypocrites? Show me the coin of the tribute. And they offered Him a penny. And Jesus saith to them: Whose image and superscription is this? They say to Him: Caesar's. Then He saith to them: Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's; and to God the things that are God's.

OFFERTORY: Esther 14: 12, 13 Remember me, O Lord, Thou who rulest above all power; and give a well-ordered speech in my mouth, that my words may be pleasing in the sight of the prince.

SECRET Grant us, O merciful God, that this saving oblation may unceasingly cleanse us from our faults and keep us from all harm. Through our Lord.

COMMUNION: Psalm 16: 6 I have cried, for Thou, O God, hast heard me: O incline Thy ear unto me, and hear my words.

POSTCOMMUNION We have received, O Lord, the gifts of Thy sacred mysteries; and most humbly pray, that what Thou hast commanded us to do in memory of Thee, may be a help in our weakness. Thou Who livest.
